

Privacy Notice

MTI respects the rights and interests of individuals regarding data privacy and personal information. This Privacy Notice describes MTI's policies and practices regarding the collection and use of personal information and sets forth your privacy rights when using our internet website ("Website"). We recognize that information privacy is an ongoing responsibility, and as we undertake new personal data practices or adopt new privacy policies, we will from time to time update this Privacy Notice.

Information We Obtain and How we Use it

You may choose to provide personal information — including, but not limited to, your first and last name, physical business address, business e-mail address, or business telephone number — through the Website. Here are ways you may provide the information and the types of information you may submit. We also describe how we may use the information you provide and the purposes. You may contact us by filling in information on forms or by sending an e-mail. Each form varies in the information required and collected. In most cases, an asterisk (*) indicates the required information on a form. You may choose to provide additional information within fields that are not required. You may complete a form or send us an e-mail to purchase a product, download a report or other material, register for a conference, submit a request, respond to an e-mail or blog posting, ask a question, apply for a job, or make a comment. We may offer visitors to our Website various features, which we may change from time to time. We may ask you to submit certain personal information so we can provide you with those features. We process personal information for certain legitimate business purposes, which include some or all of the following: We may use the information provided to respond to your inquiry, contact you about your request, ask a question, provide announcements about products and future events, conduct surveys, consider your resume for employment, and contact you for other reasons related to offering and improving our services. In addition to the uses discussed above, we may also use the personal information you provide on our Website to operate, evaluate, and improve our business. Specific uses include: advertising and marketing; performing market research; determining the effectiveness of our advertising and marketing; developing new products and services; managing our communications; analyzing our products, services, and website; and administering our website. We may also use the information to protect against and prevent fraud, claims, and other liabilities and to comply with or enforce applicable legal requirements, industry standards, and our policies and terms. In addition, we may use the information we obtain through the Website in other ways for which we provide specific notice at the time of collection.

Information We Obtain by Automated Means

When you visit our Website, we may collect certain information by automated means using technologies such as cookies, non-cookie-based tokens, web server logs, tracking pixels and web beacons. Cookies are files that websites send to your computer or other Internet-connected device to identify your browser uniquely or to store information or settings in your browser. Your browser may tell you when you receive certain types of cookies and how to restrict or disable certain cookies, however, without cookies, you may not be able to use all of the features of our Website. Non-cookie-based tokens are encoded URL-based identifiers that track e-mail click-thru activity or time-sensitive password reset keys and will work in scenarios where cookies are disabled or a session has not been initiated.

We also use third-party web analytic services on our Website, such as Google Analytics. The service providers that administer those services may use cookies and web beacons to help us analyze how users use the Website. The information collected by the cookies and web beacons (including your IP address) is available to the service providers, which use the information to evaluate your use of the Website.

We use information collected Internet through cookies, non-cookie-based tokens, web beacons, and other automated means for purposes such as customizing and enhancing our visitors' visits to the Website, facilitating use of the Website, collecting statistics about your visits to the Website, and understanding the manner in which our visitors browse the Website in order to create a more relevant Web experience. We also use the information to help diagnose technical and service problems, administer the Website, and identify visitors to the Website. We use clickstream data to determine how much time visitors spend on web pages of the Website, how visitors navigate through the Website, and how we may tailor the Website to meet the needs of our visitors.

Our web servers may log information such as your operating system type, browser type, domain, and other system settings, as well as the language your system uses and the country and time zone where your device is located. The web server logs may also record information such as the address of the web page that referred you to our Website and the IP address of the device you use to connect to the Internet. They may also log information about your interaction with the Website, such as which pages you visit.

Browser "Do Not Track" Settings

Your browser settings may allow you to transmit a "Do Not Track" signal to websites and internet services you visit. Like many other websites and internet services, we do not currently process or respond to "Do Not Track" signals from your browser or to other mechanisms that enable choice. Both we and others (such as our service providers) may collect personal information about our visitors' online activities over time and across third-party websites.

What Types of Information We Share and When

Except as otherwise described here, we do not sell or otherwise disclose personal information we collect on our Website. We may share personal information we collect on the Website with affiliates and service providers that perform services on our behalf. We do not authorize those service providers to use or disclose the information except as necessary to perform services on our behalf or comply with legal requirements. We may share personal information we collect on the Website with our affiliates, which may use the information for marketing purposes.

In addition, we may disclose personal information about you (a) if we are required to do so by law or legal process (such as court order or subpoena), (b) to law enforcement authorities or other government officials, (c) when we believe disclosure is necessary or appropriate to prevent physical harm or financial loss, or (d) in connection with an investigation of suspected or actual fraudulent or illegal activity. We reserve the right to transfer personal information we have about you in the event we sell or transfer all or a portion of our business or assets (including in the event of a reorganization, dissolution, or liquidation). Should such a sale or transfer occur, we will use reasonable efforts to direct the transferee to use personal information you have provided to us in a manner consistent with our Internet Privacy Notice.

Your Rights in Your Personal Data

Requests regarding your Personal Data: access, correction, update and deletion

Subject to applicable law and certain exemptions, you may have the right to access, rectify, oppose the processing, or delete your Personal Data. In order to exercise these rights so that updates, corrections and/or deletions can be made in accordance with applicable law, you can:

- either correct or delete your profile on our website;
- or contact the MTI Privacy Officer at dataprivacy@mineralstech.com

In many countries, you have a right to lodge a complaint with the appropriate data protection authority if you have concerns about how MTI processes your personal data.

Transfers of Personal Data

We may transfer the personal information we collect about you to recipients in countries other than the country in which the information originally was collected. Those countries may not have the same data protection laws as the country in which you initially provided the information. When we transfer your information to recipients in other countries (such as the U.S.), we will protect that information as described in this Internet Privacy Notice.

If you are located in countries that are members of the European Union (“EU”), we will comply with applicable legal requirements providing adequate protection for the transfer of personal information to recipients in countries outside of the EU.

Data Storage and Retention

Your personal data is stored by MTI on its servers, and on the servers of certain cloudbased database and data storage management services MTI engages, mostly located in the United States. MTI retains data for the duration of the user’s business relationship with MTI and in compliance with other legal, tax and operating requirements retention obligations. For more information on how long and where your personal data is stored, please contact the MTI Data Privacy Officer at dataprivacy@mineralstech.com.

How We Protect Personal Information

We maintain administrative, technical, and physical safeguards designed to protect the personal information you provide against accidental, unlawful, or unauthorized destruction, loss, access, disclosure, alteration, or use. We will update these measures as new technology becomes available, as appropriate.
